

WCRB Karate Presents:

The “Healthy Starts; Toddler Play & Learn”, early childhood development through martial arts program!

Meet World Karate Champion Rod Batiste. Master Batiste is the inventor of the first “Martial Arts Themed” early childhood development program designed exclusively for kids between the ages of thirty six, to forty eight months old.

How the Program Works!

Your baby grows:

- Physically – by practicing both fine and gross motor skills.
- Cognitively- by increasing thinking and problem-solving skills.
- Verbally- by acquiring receptive and expressive communication.
- Psychologically – by discovering more about self – identity.
- Socially – by learning how to interact with others.
- Emotionally – by mastering the expression of emotions.

It’s Sesame Street the Martial Arts Way!

Through a myriad of martial arts related games and learning activities designed to tap into specified growth areas, toddlers will “Play as they grow”, and “learn as they play.”

Whether your child is a thirty six month old, learning: object permanence, problem solving, sorting, classification, and seriation (putting things in order), or... a forty eight month old, learning: body awareness, gross motor skills, language/vocabulary building, listening and following instructions skills, and social interaction skills, their development will be enhanced by this program!

Parents looking to jumpstart their child’s learning & social development, ask the front desk for more information about the “Healthy starts; Toddler Play & Learn”, early childhood development through martial arts Program!”